November 18, 2014. On Sunday November 16, Boisdale of Canary Wharf saw cigar aficionados and celebrity cigar smokers from around the world gather for The Spectator Cigar Awards Dinner 2014. As reported yesterday, Arnold Schwarzenegger was crowned The Spectator Cigar Smoker of the Year 2014. And British Conservative member of the House of Lords and once a code-breaker at Bletchley Park during the Second World War, Baroness Trumpington was honoured with The Spectator Cigar Lifetime Achievement Award 2014. Kelsey Grammer, Hollywood star, was a runner-up for the Spectator Cigar Smoker of the Year 2014.

The evening was hosted by Tom Parker Bowles and recognised various aspects of the cigar world, with award categories including Cigar Producer, Retailer, and Writer of the Year.

For sure the most noteworthy: The Award for Best Cigar Producer 2014 was given to Oliva Cigar Company, known for their Super Premium Nicaraguan cigars (www.olivacigars.com). The nominees in this category were Alec Bradley, Davidoff, Arturo Fuente, Habanos, Oliva, Padrón and Regius Cigars.
